

The Society of Early Americanists Sponsored Panels at the American Literature Association, 32nd Annual Conference, 2021

Please note:

Due to travel restrictions imposed by presenters' various universities, the SEA@ALA panels this year are remote rather than in person. Sessions have been recorded and posted them on the ALA site (<https://americanliteratureassociation.org/ala-conferences/ala-annual-conference/ala-2021-virtual-panels/>), where they will be available until August 30, 2021. The password to view the recordings will be distributed by the ALA to registered conference-goers.

Best,

Len von Morzé
SEA@ALA Coordinator
Associate Professor and Chair
English Department
University of Massachusetts Boston
-----

Friday, June 11, 10:00AM-11:15AM Eastern Standard Time

I. Teaching Early American Environments

Organized by the Society of Early Americanists

1. "“That Which Is So Clear in the Wilderness’: Reading the Environment in Early American Literature,” Amy Oatis, University of the Ozarks
2. “Teaching Early Black Women Off and On the Page: Cultural Scripts and the Construction of Environment,” April C. Langley, University of Missouri Columbia
3. “The Eighteenth-Century iNaturalist?: Teaching Early American Science in a School for Environmental Studies,” Len von Morzé, University of Massachusetts Boston

Friday, June 11, 11:30AM-12:45PM Eastern Standard Time

II. Migration and Refuge in Early America

Organized by the Society of Early Americanists

1. “The Fantasy of a Christian Decolonialism in The Female American,” Molly Porter, University of Washington
2. “Samson Occom, Black Hawk, and Indigenous American Migration,” Allison Siehnel, SUNY Buffalo State
-----

For further information about the conference, please consult the American Literature Association website: <https://americanliteratureassociation.org>